Ag Analyst Outlines Policy Alternatives
College Station - President Reagan's chief economic analyst for agricultural programs recently outlined four policy alternatives for dealing with the nation's agricultural crisis, saying "the current level of federal spending for agriculture - more than $18 billion - can't be sustained because it's about equal to income from agriculture."
Dr. Glenn Nelson, who serves on the President's Council of Economic Advisors, said that the overall economic picture for agriculture "just doesn't look good over the short term" (two years or so) during an address to Texas bankers at Texas A&M University. He offered these policy alternatives:
1. A strong free market orientation. This would be a real "shock treatment" and would mean continuing low farm prices which would put pressure on foreign production.
2. Mandatory controls on agricultural production with current or slight increases in prices. Such controls might serve a purpose for a year or two. While mandatory controls with higher prices would be more favorable, they would mean high costs to the government and have a detrimental effect on exports.
3. Massive export subsidies. These would make our agricultural products cheaper for foreign buyers but again would be costly to our government. They would also mean higher food prices in the U.S. than overseas, and could risk a trade war.
4. Evolution of policy. Developing policy along the way means a continuation of the current PIK (payment-in-kind) program through the 1984-85 crop year as a short-term solution.
"All of these alternatives currently have a 'bad taste' to them, but one or more may be necessary for long-term improvement in agriculture," Nelson said. "We badly need programs in the short-term to bring about long-term improvement."
"How we resolve our current situation will be affected by our policies as well as by world events," Nelson pointed out. "The export market is highly volatile, and we need to be concerned about agricultural production and consumption overseas. Prices affect production overseas just as they do in the U.S. Higher prices overseas could lead to increased agricultural production."
"Consumption of agricultural products overseas is affected by population growth, prices and economic growth. In the short run, the world economy should continue 'soft,' at least through 1988," Nelson said.
"One of our main thrusts should be to do everything we can to help the world economy to recover," Nelson emphasized. "This means keeping our borders open to exports because a policy of 'protectionism' would jeopardize the agricultural sector."
A second major thrust, according to Nelson, should be to price our agricultural products competitively so that they can be moved abroad. "If we keep our price structure competitive, we should see some pickup in agricultural exports in the next few years," he said.
Alexander the Great required that his soldiers be clean shaven so the enemy could not grab them by the beard.

Farm Bureau Offers Wide Agricultural Plan Change of Aims

87th Year, No. 11 Fort Worth, Texas, March 17, 1983 Two Sections, Fifty-six Pages

Stuph & Thangs

OF DISCIPLINES A MAJOR PROBLEM TODAY
A great many areas of our lives are being pulled in many different directions. In government, in the news and in Government, and about what with so-called conflicts of interest by those in Government in addition to outright criminal actions of one kind or the other as well as the discovery that some folks in the "business" profession can't spell any better than their students, it does appear that some drastic, even harsh actions, might help this country more than somewhat.
For instance, there seems to be a reluctance on the part of law enforcement types to consider white collar crimes as serious as those of the blue collar and minority kinds. People break the laws and gain hundreds of thousands of dollars in illegal ways, but usually get off with a fine.

NCA Testified on Proposed Immigration Legislation Last Week

Washington, March 10 - The National Cattlemen's Assn. today called for revisions which would make proposed immigration legislation more realistic and less burdensome and costly in terms of affects on livestock and other agricultural producers.
The recommendations were made by Ted Hornbrook, Golden, Colo., Washington, cattlemen, who in chairman of the NCA Labor Committee, testimony before the House Judiciary subcommittee on immigration, refugees and international law. The testimony dealt with H.R. 1610, the proposed Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1983.
Hornbrook noted that, in some areas of the U.S., there is insufficient skilled labor for livestock and crop production, and nationwide from other countries, particularly Mexico, frequently are employed on farms and ranches. Therefore, a workable program for employment of foreign nationals is needed.
Hornbrook acknowledged that there are serious problems with current immigration laws and that amendments are needed in order to deal with the increasing movement of illegal aliens into the U.S. However, he added, corrective legislation must be fair to employers who depend on alien labor. As recently introduced, H.R. 1610 has provisions which would have serious impact on agriculture and the production of food.
The NCA spokesmen made comments and recommendations on three basic aspects of the proposed legislation:
1. Legalization - Granting blanket amnesty to illegal aliens already in the U.S. would send the wrong signals to impoverished persons in other countries. It would represent unfair favoritism to persons who have willingly broken U.S. laws, as compared to persons who wait patiently for legal immigration into the U.S. It would contradict efforts to establish proper control on U.S. borders, and it would result in billions of dollars in costs and federal welfare costs. While opposed to a blanket legalization program, NCA would accept a well documented program permitting needed numbers of working aliens to become citizens, provided they met the same requirements set forth for other immigrants.
2. Employer Sanctions - Sanctions against employers are opposed by NCA unless there are provisions for a national identity program which will be simple, clear, workable and accountable and which will not unfairly discriminate against persons of foreign extraction who are legally in the U.S. Without a workable national identity program, employer sanctions would be costly and not enforceable. Current provisions of H.R. 1610 would place the entire burden of responsibility on employers, putting them in the role of law enforcers. Cattle operations depend on a regular work force, not a work force that might be seriously depleted by an over-zealous government "hit squad" that would take considerable time in interviews, record inspection and searches for illegal aliens.
3. H-2 Worker Program - H.R. 1610 would make certain changes in the so-called H-2 worker program which involves temporary work permits for

Editors, Nutritionists Bridge Nutrition Gap At Press Symposium

Phoenix - "Bridging the Nutrition Gap" was the theme of a Nutrition Press Symposium, sponsored here in early March by six state beef organizations. The symposium drew 32 newspaper and magazine editors from eight states and nearly 200 dietitians from Arizona and California.
Six speakers - "leaders in the nutrition world" - addressed topics ranging from the American school lunch program to food for sports.
Beef organizations recognize the need of communicating sound, factual information to the food press. Newspapers are called on every day to make judgments about nutrition data. If the beef industry makes available experts on the current topics of nutrition, then factual and fair reporting will follow.
The fact that the conference was sponsored by state beef organizations was not a factor in their attendance, food editors said. The beef industry's "hands off" handling of the press relations was applauded by the editors who attended.
Said one: "I was concerned about accepting an invitation to a conference given by the beef industry, but I found the group to be gracious and the information as straightforward and unbiased as I could expect."
The conference marked the first attempt by state organizations to reach a large audience of both health professionals and food editors.
Sponsors were: the Arizona Beef Council, California Beef Council, Colorado Beef Board, New Mexico Beef Council, Oklahoma Beef Industry and the Texas Cattle Feeders Association.
The conference included video and audio taping of speakers. Radio and TV spots are being prepared for use by television and radio stations - as public service announcements - in California, Arizona and Texas.

Plans Being Drafted to Reduce Encouragements to Produce Surpluses, Development of Exports Is Sought

Washington, March 9 - An all-out drive to reshape federal farm programs and expedite agriculture's economic recovery was announced today by American Farm Bureau Federation President Robert Delano.
The Farm Bureau proposal, called the Agricultural Recovery Act of 1983, seeks to correct the current imbalances between supply and demand occurring with wheat, feed grains, rice, cotton and dairy by reducing what Delano called "government incentives to over-produce."
Explaining that his organization is undertaking the effort because "agriculture is at a turning point," Delano said: "We are confronted with major economic problems. We have surpluses that we have been unable to move in domestic and international markets. We have incentives that are encouraging continued overproduction. We have no prospects for price recovery in the immediate future and we see no serious opportunity for an increase in farm income under the current climate."
Specifically, the plan calls for setting maximum target prices and loan rates for the 1984-85 crops of wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice at 1983 levels. Delano noted that target prices, which determine the magnitude of deficiency payments made by the government to farmers, are scheduled to increase annually by approximately 15 cents per bushel for wheat and corn, 5 cents per pound for cotton and 50 cents per hundredweight for rice.
As for loan rates, Delano said they should not be increased above current levels. The present law stipulates minimum loan levels but the secretary of agriculture can adjust them upward.
"Because some members of Congress and some administration officials have recommended raising loan rates to reduce the difference between loans and targets - the difference being the amount that is the government deficiency payment - Farm Bureau proposes that existing loan levels act as a ceiling loan," Delano said. "This will preclude any temptation to increase loans for farm commodities in order to reduce government's budget exposure without regard to world market price."
To deal with the dairy problem, Farm Bureau proposes giving the secretary of agriculture the authority to establish the price support at not less than $11.82 per hundredweight. Price supports would not rise again until the present surplus is reduced and government purchases decline. The dollar assessment on dairy production scheduled for April would be repealed.
In addition, the package would authorize a payment-in-kind (PIK) program for 1983 and 1984, with a prohibition on farmers grazing land diverted under PIK. It would also provide for an "export PIK." Both domestic and export PIKs would not be constrained by current restrictions on the minimum resale price of government-owned commodities.
Also aimed at stimulating farm exports is a provision to use half the savings from the freezing of target prices for the still-dormant export revolving fund authorized by the 1981 farm bill.
Legislative "changes are needed," Delano asserted, because current law is based on conditions no longer present in agriculture. "The 1981 farm act was based on the expectation that high inflation would continue; it ignored supply and demand problems and, thus, has been a major factor in our surplus problem."
"Basically, it is an extension of the 1977 law which raised loans and targets during a time of high inflation, increasing land values, high commodity prices and record exports. None of those conditions are true today."
Noting that it is an opportune time to restructure farm programs, the Virginia grain farmer said: "The administration's payment-in-kind (PIK) program affords producers the chance

are you listening?

Opportunities always exist, even in economically tough times like we're facing today. The difference now is that survival may depend on finding those opportunities and taking advantage of them.

One opportunity that cattlemen should capitalize on is crossbreeding. By crossbreeding, a cattleman can reap the benefits from both selection and hybrid vigor.

The cattleman can select for traits that will make his operation more cost efficient and traits that the packer and consumer are looking for. The genetic improvement just from crossing two breeds is like an added bonus.

When considering breeds for your crossbreeding program, there is one you shouldn't overlook. A breed that offers these extras:

- Calving Ease
- Heavy Weaning Weights
- Carcasses that yield an abundance of lean, red meat with very little fat
- Easy keeping cows that won't eat you out of house and home

When times get tough, don't let opportunities pass you by.

High Energy Hog Rations Provide Best Value

Right now, the hog industry is one of the low bright spots in agriculture. According to one swine expert, a reason for this success is continuing improvements in feed efficiency. "Efficient use of feed is the key to the hog business; feed is the single largest operating expense in a hog operation. Producers should use high energy rations because they provide the best value for the feed dollar, measured not just on cost, but also by the performance of the feed," said Dr. Bud Hannon, director of swine research for Ralston Purina Company.

Commodity Comments

Week Ending March 11, 1983

The recent market action in hogs, grain, financial instruments, and livestock, cause me to wonder what is the trend in prices. Are we in bull markets, a beginning bear market, or just what? Until time passes and I can look back with hindsight, I will not know for sure where our markets are heading. I do know however, the markets are very nervous and are poised to move either sharply higher or lower, depending on new economic news.

Angus Quality Runs Deep at Houston Livestock Show

Quality ran deep at the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo in Houston, Texas, as 89 Angus were paraded around the showring. Many Angus spectators watched as judge Jim Gilroy, Washington, Indiana, gave his final nod to each champion.

Grand champion bull was Pine Drive Big Sky, owned by Premier Angus, Inc., Cloverdale, IN; LeRoy Billmon, Ostrander, OH; and Big Sky Associates. Junior champion, QLC Winchester was awarded the reserve grand bull trophy. He is owned by K&K Cattle Co., Kearney, NE; Pat Hadd Farm, Lakeview, CO; and Harmon Angus Ranch, Lavina, MT.

Grand and reserve grand females came from the junior calf division. John Graham, Gilman, IA, owns the grand champion, Grahame Lucky Lady. Coco HK took the reserve grand title for Hucklefeldt-Krebs, Cordova, NE; Bear Creek Angus, Cameron, MT; and S/2 Angus Ranch, Point Reyes Station, CA.

Quirk Land & Cattle Co., Hastings, NE, exhibited the first place set-of-sire with Fairfield III Guy progeny. High Voltage calves won the junior goat class, put together by Hucklefeldt-Krebs. Best six head winners went to R&J Ranch, Briggs.

80" tall. Brant Brothers at Muldrow, Oklahoma selected a very large framed Hereford yearling for $8,200. Volume buyer was the Stuart Ranch, a large commercial Hereford operation headquartered at Caddo, Okla.

The top selling heifer, a yearling, sold for $6,650 to Dennis Fitzpatrick, a rancher from Sterling, Kansas. The second top selling female, also a yearling, sold for $4,000 to Ballard Ranches at Canton, Oklahoma. Seasoned observers at the sale were surprised that the ewes and prices were so strong in view of the past year's economic conditions in the livestock industry. Many attributed the near record prices to the optimistic forecasts now surfacing for the next several years in the cattle industry.

He more than a slup on th' wrist or a short stay of a minimum security prison which has all th' comforts and recreation of a country club, while another pore soul gets a few bucks in merchandise or money and gets a long term in th' joint.

We reil about how little kids are learnin' in school in part because their teachers either don't know how to teach or don't care, or because there are rowdies and rough necks tearin' up th' schools or attackin' teachers who try to haller break 'em into some kind of civilized behavior. It would seem that if kids refuse to learn or attend classes and will not leave those who are serious alone, they should be kicked out. Th' policy of lettin' non-students invade schools and college campuses and disrupt thangs seems inexcusable and why th' faculties think they have to put up with outsiders on campus boggles th' mind. Call th' cops.

One of th' recent quints that got a grin was that of Gov. Mark White of Texas who campaigned on a No New Taxes platform, however, now he suggested that his position did not extend to "sin taxes." Now a definition of sin taxes might be an interesting study. Notchably th' more prominent sin taxes have to do with liquor, tobacco, etc., but pick up my newspaper or tune in any radio or T.V. news cast and you find that sine of various magnitude are committed on streets, stores, automobiles, clubs, movies and as a matter of fact th' ability of some people to sin seems to know no bounds or limits as to locale or th' vehicle used for sinning.

If we already have too many laws to permit enforcement, then perhaps it would be better to repeal 'em than to start tryin' to add more laws to th' pile. What we really need is a few politicians to appear who are not interested in perpetuity in office, but want just one turn in office long enough to get criminals of all stripes made to regret their sins. This kind of sin tax would really pay off handsomely, and when public officials violate th' laws they deserve a heavier handed justice than th' run of th' mill thief or hijacker.

Ever think, The Editor.

P.S. Unko Dunk notes Comptroller Bob Bullock of Texas reports th' Sales Tax Tako is runnin' some 4.5% behind and this is creatin' all kinds of problems for th' State & Local Governments who like to blow this money on various projects. Cll set for a lot of new ideas on taxes, at all levels. Dunk figures some folks may think we have made a lot of progress since th' days when one of them South or Central American countries got two raunchy and we would send a boat load of Marines down there to jerk th' shuck outta 'em, but you got to admit it was a lot quicker and neater than th' way we handle these outbreaks now. — Thunseil, Brothers!

Ankole Watul Registry Formed

The Ankole Watul International Registry was formed on January 20, 1983 at an organizational meeting held at the Livestock Exchange Building in Denver during the National Western Stock Show.

The specific purposes for forming this registry are to recognize those cattle as a distinct breed in order to protect their ancient, rare and unique heritage, originated in Africa and to preserve their purity and promote public awareness of the breed, according to the newly elected President, Dyan Drake of Penrose, Colorado.

"There are approximately 120 purebred Ankole or Watul cattle in the United States. We formed the association to record their bloodlines and start a crossbreeding, upbreeding program which will advance these cattle through a number of generations to purebreds as has been done in several other breeds of cattle," said Drake.

Maureen Neidhardt, Hebron, N.D., was elected Secretary/Treasurer and Newsletter Editor, and the Board of Directors as follows: George Ansley, Haswell, CO; Bill Lowe, Canon City, CO; Marlin Neidhardt, Hebron, N.D.; Dan Shudow, Winchester, TN and Don Zavislan, Pueblo West, CO. A Board of Advisors was also appointed: George Ackerman, Alliance, NE; Bob Borgkamp, Eldorado, KS; Brian Melin, Calmar, Albert, Canada; William Moore, Columbus, MT; Harold Nations, Springhill, LA and C. B. Wiley, Willis Point, TX.
